Dr. Price is the Associate Residency Program Director at University of Connecticut—the largest program in New England at 54 Residents. She is originally from Tucson, Arizona and obtained her undergraduate degree at Abilene Christian University, did post bachelor at Tennessee State University and research in immunology at Vanderbilt University. She returned to University of Arizona for medical school and completed her emergency medicine residency at Emory University. She then moved to West Hartford, CT to pursue a fellowship in International EM at the University of Connecticut. She has a long time interest in travel and missions which is why she chose Emergency Medicine.

Dr. Price serves on the Board of Directors of FaithCare and yearly lead trips to Nigeria, Dominican Republic and Haiti. Other areas of interest are faith in medicine, resident wellness, cultural competency, health care disparities, obesity and asthma. She is a well-practiced speaker and has many opportunities to lecture both nationally and internationally on these interests. She is heavily involved in the EM section of the National Medical Association and serves on the Executive Council as a past section Chair.

Topic: “Race, Cancer and Emergency Medicine: Lessons Learned from the Inside …”

Time: 11:00a.m-12:00p.m.

Date: Tuesday : September 16th, 2014

Place: Steiner Auditorium (Grady Campus)