Seth M. Holmes, Ph.D., M.D. is Martin Sisters Endowed Chair & Assistant Professor in the UC Berkeley School of Public Health’s Community Health and Human Development Division and the Graduate Program in Medical Anthropology. He is Co-Director of the MD/PhD Track in Medical Anthropology coordinated between UCSF and UC Berkeley.

He is currently investigating social hierarchies, health, health care and the naturalization and normalization of difference and inequality in the context of transnational US-Mexico immigration. This project led to the publication of the book, Fresh Fruit, Broken Bodies: Migrant Farmworkers in the United States”. View one of the articles at: http://m.npr.org/news/Business/209925420. In addition, Dr. Holmes is exploring new research into the social, symbolic, and political processes producing HIV death among specific categories of people, particularly Latino day laborers and other ethno-racial and sexual minorities and marginalized groups.

Topic: “Poverty and Health in the United States: Perspectives from Living, Working and Traveling with Migrant Farmworkers”

Time: 11:00a.m-12:00noon

Date: September 10th, 2013

Place: Faculty Office Building (FOB 101) (Grady Campus)